

WALSH AND REED EXPLAIN BAD POINTS OF LEAGUE IN BOSTON

WILL SHOW WHERE IT FRILLS

Public Mass Meeting in Tremont Temple Next Wednesday Night

A mass meeting on the League of Nations will be held in Tremont Temple next Wednesday night under the auspices of the Boston American.

Senators David I. Walsh of Massachusetts and James A. Reed of Missouri will be the chief speakers. Governor H. MacFarland will preside. Senator Reed is nationally known as one of the "Bitter-enders" opposed to the league, which he has characterized as a "bill of lard."

Senator Walsh, a short time ago, sounded a warning that the league meant the presidential campaign "means disaster to the Democratic party."

The purpose of the mass meeting is to explain why these men closely in touch with the situation on the league believe that it should be drastically changed before being ratified.

Although editorially the American has fought continuously and steadfastly for this principle, it is believed that the real meaning of the matter will be brought home to Boston citizens through hearing those who are against the league.

No man in the United States is better versed on the subject of the League of Nations than Senator Reed, who from the first has led in the fight against the movement. No in the field at Washington contributed to the higher branch of the National Legislature a broader vision or a more acute mind. Although a staunch Democrat, Senator Reed refused to stand with his party in an issue which he considered against the interests of his country.

At one time he aroused the Senate gallery to an unparalleled demonstration of enthusiasm at the end of a four-hour verbal attack on the league.

A few days since he attacked Hoover's candidacy for President.

Senator Walsh, although a staunch supporter of the President, also found himself unable to resist his party, and took a stand with opponents of the league. He has firmly maintained his attitude that the league will not prevent future wars and is against the interests of the United States.

LIE PASSED IN MEDFORD ROW

Ordered to Leave Chamber, Alderman Taintor Threatens to Make Things "Hot"

A meeting of the Medford Board of Aldermen which continued until early today produced thrills galore. Alderman George W. Taintor passed the lie to Acting Mayor John J. Mulvihill and, when ordered to leave the chamber, threatened to make things "hot" for anyone who laid hands on him.

The acting mayor charged Taintor with using an obscene epithet against the acting mayor. Taintor refused to do so and on his refusal to do so the city messenger was used to use force.

Taintor's threat to make it "hot" had its effect. He was not elected, although the president of the board ruled that he could take no part in future proceedings until he apologized to the acting mayor.

Taintor refused to do so and has been ordered to leave the city.

Opposes Demand for Alimony in Rhyme

New York, Jan. 28.—In an application to Supreme Court Justice Pitlake to restore an old divorce case to the calendar, an affidavit in verse was produced.

When the case of Mrs. Anna M. Mues against Joseph H. Muesbach of his wife was last on the calendar in 1916, the wife had made a poem for alimony.

Mr. Muesbach is said to be a descendant of the mother of Napoleon Bonaparte. Who called for Russia in 1812, where a fortune awaited her from an estate. In 1912 the husband left her, on route for Russia. The following rhythmic affidavit was submitted in opposition to the sound for alimony.

"We believe, now being come, that this is a defendant's case. In this affidavit we set forth in true and full all aspects of the case as it now stands."

TRIES TO PACIFY TWO WOMEN

Judge Lawton Orders Tillie Feldman Not to Annoy Minnie Freedman

A "bath of dance" was administered to the Superior Court today when Mrs. Minnie Freedman testified that Mrs. Tillie Feldman had used abusive language to her and struck her with an umbrella.

Mrs. Freedman, who conducts a millinery business at Nos. 499 and 497 Harrison avenue, brought contempt proceedings against Mrs. Feldman, alleging that the latter had annoyed her in violation of a court order pending a hearing on their controversy.

Mrs. Feldman has a suit pending against Mrs. Freedman, charging alienation of the affections of Dr. Feldman, a dentist, who recently divorced Mrs. Feldman.

Mrs. Feldman has a bill in equity against the other on charges of interfering with her business.

Judge Lawton dismissed the contempt petition, but issued an order restraining Mrs. Feldman from annoying Mrs. Freedman.

Mrs. Florence H. Brant of Beacon street was awarded a verdict of $500 today by a Suffolk County jury in her suit against a Tremont street furrier for injuries resulting from wearing a dyed foxskin neckpiece.

She danced her way into the hearts of society, not only here, but in New York, and her marriage to young Gould was strictly a love match, according to her mother, Mrs. M. J. Carter, who conducts a lodging house at No. 141 West Newton street.

TELLS OF SPLIT OF SOCIALISTS

Stedman Repudiates Communism; Lunn Declines Against Expulsion

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 28.—Senator Stedman, counsel for the five suspended Socialist Assemblymen, at today's hearing in their case before the Judiciary committee declared they were opposed instead of favorable to the Communist Party and its doctrines.

Stedman brought out the story of the Socialist Party split in Chicago last summer when the Communists formed a separate party.

"We object to having the theories of other organizations from which we have split attributed to us," he said. "We'll stand by our own theories, but we object to having the beliefs of others forced upon us."

George L. Lunn, who became famous as Socialist Mayor of Schenectady, N. Y., in 1912, and who is now Democratic Mayor of the same city, testified that in 1911, when he was running for Mayor, Socialists insisted he sign a blank resignation and let them hold it.

"They made me mad, but I had to do it," he said. "But when I ran the next time I refused to sign the resignation and that time I was beaten."

"I think it was because I didn't sign," he said. "I think it was because I didn't sign."

"Much as I am now opposed to Socialists," he said, "I think the proceedings here in all wrong and my feelings are all with the committee of the New York Bar Association, which says that the whole affair is unconstitutional and illegal."

See How White Teeth Can Be Without Film

All Statements Approved by High Dental Authorities

Perhaps your teeth are clouded by a film. Most teeth are, more or less, save right after cleaning in a dentist's chair.
The cloudy film looks like the teeth, and you think the teeth are clouded. But it is the film. Remove it and see how teeth look then.

That vicious film which you feel with your tongue is the cause of most tooth troubles. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. The tooth brush does not end it. The ordinary dentifrice does not dissolve it. So it stays—much of it—and may do a countless damage.

That is why so many brushed teeth discolor and decay. You leave the film, and that is the great tooth wrecker. Despite the tooth brush, statistics show that tooth troubles are constantly increasing.

How Teeth Are Ruined
That film is what discolors—not the teeth. It is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. Dentists call the film "bacterial plaque." These germs, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Dental science has for years sought a way to combat this film. Periodic dental cleaning removed the film and tartar.
But what was needed was a daily film
combater.

It has now been found. Convincing clinical and laboratory tests have amply proved its efficiency. Able authorities endorse it. And now leading dentists all over America are urging its daily use.

For home use the method is embodied in a dentifrice called Pepsodent—a scientific product. And, to spread the facts, a 10-Day Tube is being sent to anyone who asks.

Now Millions Know
Now millions know by actual test what Pepsodent can do. Everywhere you see the results in whiter, cleaner teeth.

Pepsodent is based on pepsin, the dis-integrant of albumin. The film is albuminous matter. The object of Pepsodent is to dissolve it, then to day by day combat it.

Pepsin long seemed impossible. It must be activated, and the usual method is an acid harmful to the teeth. But science has discovered a harmless activating method. And now this film combatant can be every day applied.

Pepsodent needs no argument. The results are quick and apparent. See what it does, read the reason, then judge it for yourself.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube.
Now how clean the teeth feel after using.
Mark the absence of the filmy film. See how the teeth whiten as the fixed film disappears.

Compare the results with your old methods. See the effects you never saw before. The test will be a revelation to you. Mail the coupon to us today.

BIG SUPPLY OF LIQUOR IS TO BE SEIZED

Intoxicants in Storage and Not Registered Go Into Possession of U. S.

By Investigative News Service.

Washington, Jan. 28.—Uncle Sam came into technical possession of large quantities of intoxicating beverages today. All unregistered intoxicants today were liable to seizure by the internal revenue commissioners.

Under rulings issued by Commissioner Rogers, all liquor stored in warehouses or other storage places, not registered with the bureau of internal revenue, were to be seized.

Liquors stored in private homes for home consumption were exempted. Until today it has been permissible to sell and move liquor from warehouses for non-beverage purposes.

Commissioner Rogers is considering means of checking profiteering in liquors. Reports reaching the bureau of internal revenue indicated that druggists are charging exorbitant prices for liquors for medicinal purposes and are reaping huge profits. It was reported whiskey purchased for $4 a gallon was sold for medicinal purposes for $4 a pint.

Leaders in Economics Brought Before Commission to Back Up Claims of Men

Washington, Jan. 28.—Economic experts from all over the country were brought into the wage controversy before the President's coal commission today by the bituminous miners in their effort to vindicate their demand for a 40 per cent. increase in wages and a six-hour day, five days a week.

In the list of those whom the miners have summoned to their aid are J. S. Hanes, economist, of Johns Hopkins University; L. A. Rice, former stationer for the Santa Fe railway; J. E. Clegg, assistant for the Shipbuilding War Adjustment Board; Arthur Burroughs, consulting engineer at Boston; Dr. H. J. Harris of the Library of Congress; W. W. Hubbard, secretary of the Immigration Bureau; L. S. Duffell, of the War Labor Board.

The miners, in launching their offensive, pointed to figures of the Bureau of Labor statistics and other government departments to show that it is an "old dream" to expect decreases in the cost of living until normal world conditions have been restored.

The miners said a wage increase corresponding to the increased cost of living is unacceptable for the year. "That the miners always have been underpaid."

"They asked the commission to make mandatory these two principles in its award."

"The pre-war status of the mine workers must be guaranteed by the operators."

"Every mine worker is entitled to rates of pay which under the working conditions of his business will guarantee him a living wage at all times."

A. O. H. UN DRIVE FOR MORE MEMBERS
Co. Waterford Reunion, Gaelic School Dance, and Irish Freedom Meeting Tonight

A drive for new members and re-enrollment of former members is making with success in the Suffolk county divisions of the Ancient Order of Hibernians. Branches in Middlesex and Norfolk counties are likewise successful.

At a meeting of the board of directors of the National body in Buffalo recently the building up of the membership came up for consideration and it was decided to bring the matter formally to the attention of all subordinate branches by circular letters and later by a corps of orators.

Suffolk county divisions immediately began the work of increasing their membership. They were assisted by the Ladies' Auxiliary, which at the same time completed for new members for the auxiliary.

NEW BRANCH FORMED.
Suffolk County is represented by Richard J. Dwyer of South Boston on the board of directors of the national body. Dwyer reports that the directors of the national organization are aiding President Kinnear in disposing of bonds for the Irish Republic and are to purchase $100,000 worth of the securities. The latter auxiliary voted to take $1,000 worth.

Dr. Dwyer has been selected as the redeemer for the delegates selected to attend the national convention in 1921, and it is predicted by the board of directors that by then the attendance will be the largest in the history of the order because of the increase in membership.

PRESIDENT DEERY COMING.
All divisions of the Suffolk County branch that meets in Boston Sunday afternoon and evening will act on these and other matters and delegates to the quarterly convention of the Suffolk county board will receive definite instructions about calling the officials of each branch as speakers at public meetings in honor of the membership and Irish Republic bond drive.

Arrangements will also be made at these meetings for the reception to be accorded National President James E. Dwyer of Indianapolis when he comes to Boston in honor of the membership drive, Thursday, March 18. It is probable that the plan to have him speak at a mass meeting will take form.

WATERFORD REUNION TONIGHT.
Another organization working for a larger membership is the Irish County Club, under the direction of the officers of the Central Council. The club will be given the responsibility tonight at the annual reunion, held and revised of the County Waterford Association in Palm Beach, Fla.

On the committee in charge of the arrangements are Andrew J. Conboy, chairman; Richard P. Carroll, Mrs. Joseph McMillan, Miss Katherine Leonard, Thomas Francis Leonard, Mrs. Edward H. Leonard, Miss Gertrude Leonard, Miss Nora McMillan, Miss Mary Clancy, John Powers and William Minne.

GALIC REUNION DANCE.
All branches of the Friends of Irish Freedom will be represented at the public meeting to be held in Faneuil Hall Monday afternoon under the auspices of the Irish Revere Lodge.

The Boston Gaelic School Society will hold a benefit dance tonight in the hall at No. 210 Washington street, Boston. The twenty-fifth annual ball of the society is scheduled to be held in Old Faneuil Hall, Berkeley and Tremont streets, March 16. Timothy O'Leary and the Misses Helen Donovan, Beatrice Harrington and Jennie Kelly comprise the committee of arrangements.

Frontmost speakers will address the public meeting tonight of Monday night at the Irish Revere Lodge, Friends of Irish Freedom in Faneuil Hall, Berkeley and National streets, South Boston. Plans will be outlined for a campaign in aid of the sale of Irish Liberty bonds.

Medford wife claims she was deserted.

Miss Elizabeth M. Nickerson of Medford has filed a suit for divorce against her husband, George B. Nickerson, of Boston. They were married in Portland, Me., September 1, 1915, and have one child, a daughter, who is now in the custody of the mother.

The alleged desertion on March 1, 1912 and also asks for the custody of a minor child.

FAITHFUL SERVICE IN NAVY REWARDED

DESTROY'S VERMIN ON CHILDREN'S HEADS

She's as vivid as a tropic bird!

Blouses every color in the rainbow—
Underwear blue, pink, lavender, even green—
Dresses, wraps, collars, stockings singing with color.

THE smart woman goes more brilliantly this season than she's ever gone in America before. She wears more radiant colors, and she wears them on things we never dreamed before of having anything but white. Blouses, underwear, dresses, stockings—collars, ribbons, handkerchiefs—you cannot come to the end of things that this year says are only smart and really bewitching if they fairly scatter color as they go.

Only the trouble is, you can't get the colors you want till months after you first read about them. It takes so long to get a new color into fabrics, and then made up into clothes.

But you don't have to wait and fuss any more. You don't have to hunt and hunt the shops. There's a wonderful new way to get the latest colors at once. You can wash your waist turquoise or old rose, you can wash your chemise yellow, or the very latest—light gray.

A new product—as wonderful for giving colors as Lux is for preserving them

YOU can give your clothes any smart color you want, at the same time they're laundered as perfectly as with Lux! It's too wonderful to believe! But when you see the dazzlingly gay flakes come tumbling from the Twink package, you just know they're going to do something charming for you.

The smartest colors—and right every time

The merry flakes give all your things not only pretty colors, but smart ones. Every color Twink comes in was chosen with the help of the highest authorities in this country on the colors of women's clothes. And never do your blouses come out streaked or dingy, but lovely, even colors—and so fast you can wash them several times with Lux before they need another Twinking.

You just wish your waist about in the brilliant lather and all in a twinkling you've made a rather scorned blouse into one you adore. Or the rosy pink one that the sun had faded—bright as a peony again, and the blue that was too babyish—a rich Copenhagen. Once you've used Twink you want to be young and gay in every bit of fabric that comes near you.

Get Twink in all your favorite colors today and follow the surprisingly easy directions that come with the package. Twink won't injure anything water alone won't harm.

The accident article in the hardware store is a heavyweight who has outgrown the bantam class. This is a tough point to throw. Which established quite a shock when Leo Hock and Eddie Reave pulled the first prize in an all-weightweight bout at the Olympic last week. Leo used to fight lightweight until he had to have his vest made in a barrel factory. And he is a good fighter.

The Valley of the Giants

By Peter B. Kyne

IT'S all a great mystery, but I'm sure you didn't intend it to be so—so terrible. Oh, my dear, if we had only continued to be the good friends we started out to be, perhaps you'd let me help you now. For what good is money if one cannot help one's dear friends in distress. Still, I know you wouldn't let me help you, for men of your stamp cannot borrow from a woman, no matter how desperate their need. And yet—you only need a paltry fifty thousand dollars!

Shirley carried to bed with her that night the woes of the Cardinals, and in the morning she telephoned Mrs. McTavish and invited the latter to lunch with her at the home that noon. It was in her mind to question Mrs. McTavish as to acquiring additional information. When Mrs. McTavish saw Shirley say that she had been weeping—

"My poor Mrs. McTavish," she said, putting her arms around her visitor. "What has happened to distress you? Has your father come back to Sequoia? Forgive me for asking. You never mentioned him, but I have heard—there, there, dear! Tell me all about it."

Mrs. McTavish told Shirley of her father's death and of her father's death. Shirley said that she had been weeping—

"My poor Mrs. McTavish," she said, putting her arms around her visitor. "What has happened to distress you? Has your father come back to Sequoia? Forgive me for asking. You never mentioned him, but I have heard—there, there, dear! Tell me all about it."

Mrs. McTavish told Shirley of her father's death and of her father's death. Shirley said that she had been weeping—dees buy it. What price are the Cardinals asking for it now?"

"Well, Colonel Pennington has offered them a hundred thousand dollars for it this time and again, but last night he withdrew that offer. Then they named a price of fifty thousand, and he said he didn't want it at all."

"The needs it, and it's worth every cent of a hundred thousand to him, Mrs. McTavish. Don't worry, dear. He'll buy it, because I'll make him, and he'll buy it immediately; only you must promise me not to mention a single word of what I'm telling you to Mrs. Cardigan, or in fact to anybody. Do you promise?"

Mrs. McTavish said Shirley's hand and kissed it impulsively. "Very well, then," Shirley continued. "The matter is adjusted, and now we'll all be happy. Here comes Thelma with lunch. Cheer up, dear, and remember that sometime this afternoon you're going to see Mr. Bryce again, and perhaps there won't be so much of a cloud over his smile this time."

When Mrs. McTavish returned to the office of the Cardinal Redwood Lumber Company, Shirley rang for her maid. "Bring me a hot water bottle and bath," she ordered. "and telephones for the moment." She seated herself before the mirror at her dressing table and dusted her adorable nose with a powder-puff. Shirley Cardigan, the Cardinal's daughter, also mirrored happily. "You walked rough-shod over my pride, didn't you? Thank me under an obligation I could never hope to meet—and then ignored me—didn't you? Very well, old boy, we all have our things sooner or later, you know, and I'm going to make a substantial payment on that huge obligation as sure as my name is Shirley Cardigan. This, nine days when the sun is shining for you again, you'll come to me and be very, very humble. You're entirely too independent, Mr. Cardigan, but oh, my dear, I do hope you will not need me as much as I shall be put to my wits end to get it to you without letting you know, because if your affairs are managed by me perfectly tolerable. And yet you deserve it." Shirley said an angel, and a grateful face. "I'm just an interesting incident, a beautiful little devil seeking vengeance on—"

She paused suddenly. "Oh, I'll not do that, either," she continued. "I'll keep it myself—for an investment. I'll show these folks I'm a business woman, after all. He had his fair share of the Valley of the Giants, after waiting years for it, and now he has deliberately sacrificed that right to me to mean and vindictive. I'll frighten these folk very sorry—after what Mrs. Cardigan did for us that day the log train ran away."

"I will teach him not to hit an old man when he's down and keep my identity secret from everybody; then, when Uncle Seth finds a place in possession, he'll have a fit, and perhaps, before he recovers he'll tell me all his Squaw Creek timber—only he'll never know I'm the buyer. And when I control the market, I think that Squaw Creek timber will make an excellent investment if it's held for a few years. Shirley, my dear, I'm pleased with you. Really, I never knew until now why men could be so devoted to business. Won't it be jolly to step in between Uncle Seth and Mrs. Cardigan, hold up my hand like a policeman, and say: 'Stop it, boys. No fighting, if you please. And if anybody wants to know who's boss around here, start something!'"

Hysterical Outburst

The hysterical outburst over Shirley led the girl to her cozy sitting room upstairs and propped upon the girl to put on one of her own beautiful negligees. Mrs. McTavish's confession of love was too good for Mrs. McTavish. She had stilled Shirley deeply. She heated herself in front of the fire. She hugged her child in her arms.

"Of course, dear," she said, "you couldn't possibly see anything for me. I loved after so and not feel foolishly about it. And when a man like Mrs. Cardigan is attracted, he's apt to present rather a tragic and helpless figure. He wanted sympathy. Mrs. Cardigan's sympathy, and it was dear of you to give it to him."

"Oh, I'm glad to do for him," Mrs. McTavish answered simply. "Oh, Mrs. Shirley, you don't know him the way we who work for him do. If you did, you'd love him, too. You couldn't help it, Mrs. Shirley."

"Perhaps he loves you, too, Mrs. McTavish." The words came with difficulty.

Mrs. McTavish shook her head hopelessly. "No, Mrs. Shirley. I'm only one of his many human problems, and he just won't go back on me for old days' sake. We played together ten years ago, when he was to spend his vacation at our place in Cardigan's woods. When my father was woods-boss. He's Mrs. Cardigan—and I—went to work in the kitchen of his logging camp."

"Cover mind, Mrs. McTavish. He will love you, even though you do not suspect it. You mustn't be so despairing. Providence has a way of working out these things. Tell me about his trouble, Mrs. McTavish."

"I think it's money. He's been terribly worried for a long time, and I'm afraid things aren't going right with the business. Mrs. McTavish felt ever since I've been there that there's something that puts a cloud over Mr. Bryce's smile. It's in them terribly to have to tell the Valley of the Giants, but they have to; Colonel Pennington is the only one who would consider buying it; and still they have to have it."

Will Buy It

"I happen to know, Mrs. McTavish, that he isn't going to buy it."

"Yes, he is—but not at a price that will do him any good. They have always thought he would be eager to buy whenever he decided to sell, and now he says he doesn't want it, and old Mr. Cardigan is last in it all. Mr. Bryce says his father has lost his courage at last; and oh, dear, things are in such a mess, Mr. Bryce started to tell me all about it—and then he stopped suddenly and wouldn't say another word."

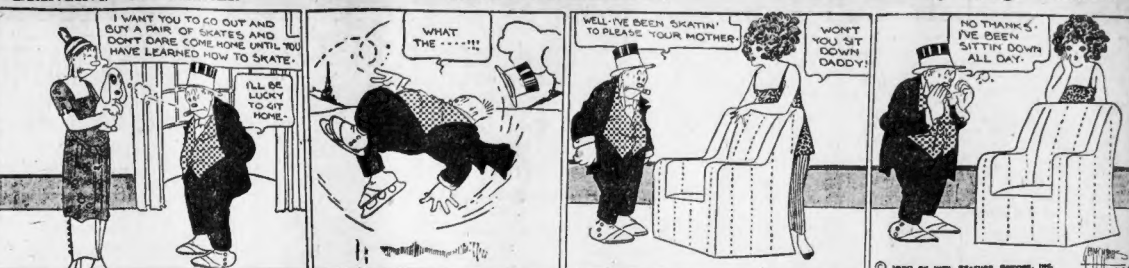

Shirley smiled. She thought she understood the reason for that. However, she did not pause to speculate on it, since the crying need of the present was the distribution of a ray of sunshine to broken-hearted Mrs. McTavish.

"Stilly," she chimed, "how needlessly you are grieving. You say my uncle has declined to buy the Valley of the Giants?"

Mrs. McTavish said: "My uncle doesn't know what he's talking about, Mrs. Shirley. I'll see that he

The Two Present Parties Are Both Bad—Let's Make a Better One

For more than one hundred years this country of ours steadily refused to recognize political offences as crimes punishable on any or as grounds for deportation or extradition.

Each President in succession, each Congress in succession, each court in succession, upheld the law of asylum and the liberty of political belief and teaching.

An unbroken line of judicial decisions upheld the decisive findings of the great Chief Justice, John Marshall, that any man was in America, to hold and to advocate any theory of government including the alteration or abolition of our government or of all governments—and that no lawful accusation of crime could be brought against him until he had committed an overt, seditious or treasonable act; and, also, that any man who took refuge on American soil was immune from extradition to the country from which he fled, if his offence in that country was a political offence.

That was always our doctrine and our practice until Woodrow Wilson became President and set the bad fashion of replacing the old-fashioned American doctrines and practices with the doctrines and practices of European monarchies.

Year after year, revolutionists worsted in the struggle to overthrow hated governments fled to America, and here found freedom and safety.

Hungarian revolutionists, Polish revolutionists, German revolutionists, Italian revolutionists, Greek revolutionists, Russian revolutionists, Irish revolutionists—revolutionists from every country in Europe—found asylum under our free flag.

This noble tradition and practice of sympathy and protection for men struggling for the liberty of their own lands was first broken when British secret police were permitted to seize a number of Hindoos, who had fled from English tyranny to our Pacific Coast and there continued to plan and to work for the freedom of their oppressed people, and when all the powers of the Department of Justice and its spy system were put at the disposition of the British Consulate in San Francisco in order, first, to imprison these Hindoos, and, second, to deport them to the custody of British officials in India, with the practical certainty of execution.

Certainly, these proceedings were a far cry from the tumultuous welcome given the rebel Kosuth, from the hearty welcome given to Carl Schurz, from the fraternal welcome and the strong protection given to the countless rebels driven from Ireland by the same British tyranny which plunders and oppresses and maltreats and massacres the helpless people of India.

Beginning with this first blot upon our unbroken and splendid practice of sheltering and protecting political offenders claiming asylum, we have rapidly progressed, in these four years past, to hundreds of weekly and daily assaults upon alien refugees, claiming asylum, and from assaults upon the right of asylum to assaults upon the freedom of speech, the freedom of press, the freedom of political creed and the crowning freedom of choosing representation.

Under a gross misinterpretation of the spirit and meaning of a Constitutional grant to each House of the Congress of the power to judge the qualifications of its own members, the House of Representatives has set the vicious example of refusing a seat to a re-elected Socialist member from the Fifth Congressional District of Wisconsin, and the Assembly of the State of New York has just exceeded this vicious example by suspending, without trial or hearing, five elected Socialist representatives from the City of New York.

No petting and no hide the open and, apparent truth that these men have all been refused their lawful seats because of their POLITICAL BELIEF—just as the men and women who crowd the prison cells on Ellis Island are being subjected to the same Czaristic and bureaucratic tyranny from which they fled before that tyranny went down to destruction under the wrath and courage of the Russian people.

Now, then, citizens, either a decent regard for the traditions and teachings of our free fathers and a common-sense concern for the security of our own liberties must stir all to resist and to put an end to the tyranny which has sprung up on American soil, or else we will eventually see flourishing on our soil those abominable institutions of autocracy, bureaucracy, secret police spies, and arrests and convictions without public trial, which the genius of the Russian people has driven from their midst.

Our children will have no liberties at all, and we shall have only curtailed liberties ourselves, if we do not take our public officials—Presidents, Congressmen, Cabinet Secretaries, judges, magistrates, legislators, policemen and every other variety—sternly in hand and teach them OBEDIENCE TO THE CONSTITUTION and their rightful places as our hired servants, and not our self-constituted masters.

We must organize for the defence of every defenceless man or woman whose rights are assailed, never forgetting that in a democracy an assault upon the liberties of one is an assault upon the liberties of all—your liberties and our liberties.

We must unite our purses and our voices and our efforts and our votes to make it clearly manifest to the subversive part of the press and to impudent or ignorant or controlled officials, and to faithless judges and to ruthless plunderers and their agents that we mean to make an end of tyranny in office, subversivity in the press, faithlessness in the courts, and assaults from whatever source upon the authority and integrity of the Constitution and upon our natural and inherited liberties.

The conduct of the Assembly and much of the conduct of the Congress show clearly that neither the Democratic nor the Republican political organization will defend the plain people against the purposes of the sinister interests.

They are both alike the creatures of their financial bosses—and anybody who really thinks they are not is simple-minded.

The only political hope of the people is a party of the people for the people, responsive to the people.

Such a party in reality exists. That is to say, its MEMBERSHIP exists.

All that is needed to make it effective in our national life is ORGANIZATION.

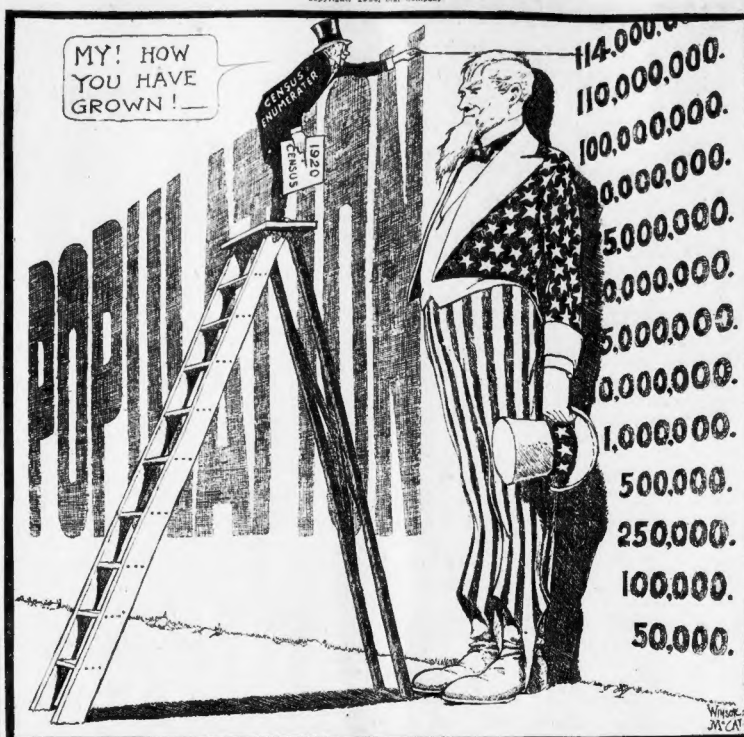

Then let's go about the job of organization.

The time, the occasion and the will are all present. Nothing is lacking but action.

Let's ask good people.

More Truth Than Poetry

Modesty Earns Few Dividends

By S. E. KISER

TWO men who had an even start—
Suppose we call them Smith and Brown—
Each with high courage in his heart.
Said good-bye to a little town,
And one went East and one went West,
Both having hope and strength and health,
And each prepared to do his best
In winning prominence and wealth.

SOMEWHERE—perhaps it was in school—
Brown, who was modest in his ways,
Had learned a homely little rule.
To wit, that boasting never pays.
Two other rules that he had learned
While browsing over musty shelves
Were: "Praise will come when it is earned,"
And "Let your deeds speak for themselves."

SMITH never hesitated; when
He did a thing that made him proud
To point it out to other men
His talk was confident and loud.
He looked over talents others claimed,
But never overlooked his own,
And wasn't in the least ashamed
To like himself and make it known.

ONE day, when both had traveled far,
They landed in the little town;
One stepped forth from a private car,
And one looked seedy and run-down.
One made a speech, then got a ride
Up street, escorted by the band;
Brown walked along behind and sighed,
And couldn't seem to understand.

MORAL:

FIND happiness in doing well,
But you will walk in humble ways,
Unless you have the nerve to tell
The world when you deserve its praise.

Inspired by recent articles on baseball, we have commissioned our sporting expert to write a snappy series on Graft in Golf, Corruption in Checkers, Crooks in Chess and Sneaks in Solitaire.

SAMUEL REA,
PRESIDENT PENNSYLVANIA RY.
MY DEAR SAM,
I'M WRITING THIS
ON ONE of your trains.
ON THE way West.
AND I'VE just come in
FROM the dining car.
FULL of contentment.
AND TEA biscuits.
AND THAT wonderful honey.
IN THE glass jars.
WHERE THE label says
THAT IT was gathered
BY SELECTED BEES.
FROM THE choicest flowers.
AND I want to tell you THAT WHOEVER IT WAS
WHO SELECTED THE BEES
IS ALL RIGHT.
AND HE KNOWS BEES.
AND I'M for him.
AND IF it ever happens
I WANT any bees
I'LL LET him pick 'em.
I'M wandering, Sam.
FROM THE main idea.
THAT I had in my mind
WHEN I started this letter.
I WANTED to tell you ABOUT THE waiters.
IN THE dining car.
AND IN particular
ABOUT THE one I had.
HE'S a little waiter.
WITH A little mustache.
AND WHEN we sat down
AND HE was waiting.
WHILE I wrote our order.
HE LOOKED out of the window.
AND SAID:
"IT'S QUITE A snowstorm."
AND IT WAS.

AND OF course we knew it.
AND HE knew we knew it.
BUT NEVERTHELESS.
IT WAS A happy beginning.
BECAUSE WE knew right away
HE WAS A friendly waiter
AND HAD A desire
TO BE agreeable.
AND WE both of us answered.
THAT IT certainly was.
SOMEWHAT of a snowstorm.
AND THEN he knew
THAT WE were all right.
AND HE waited patiently.
TILL WE wrote our order.
AND THEN took it away.
AND WHEN he came back
THE EGGS weren't turned over.
AS I'D ordered them.
AND I was going to holler.
UNTIL MY wife said:
"HE'S SUCH A nice waiter.
I WOULDN'T bother him."
"LET'S EAT them this way."
AND SO we did.
AND THEY were just as good
AND WE didn't bother the waiter.
AND HE didn't bother the cook.
AND EVERYBODY was happy.
AND THERE wasn't any row.
AND IT all happened.
BECAUSE it was snowing outside.
AND THE waiter mentioned it.

So who, then, object to the rule
for which fate has cast you? I think the real secret of your per-turbation over the matter is to be found in that sentence, "Even my friends have begun to think I have no backbone."
Let your friends call it lack of
backbone and an imposition on good nature. If you care to. You don't have to accept that definition
or let yourself be troubled by it.
If it gives you pleasure to be
of aid and comfort to others, if thereby you best express your real
nature, go ahead and do it heed-
less of the criticism or the protests
of your well-meaning friends.
Doubtless it often proves a severe test on your line, doubtless your reward is often ingratitudes or even rebuffs. But you can't have anything in this world without paying some sort of a price for it,
and your own satisfaction in doing
good will far outweigh the pin
pricks.

IMPOSITION NO TERROR TO USEFUL GIRLS

By Mrs. Wilson Woodrow

"CAN you please tell me why people impose on my good nature?" asks a girl who has written me.

Probably if I were a psychoanalyst, I should answer that the posibility was due to some complexity of suppressed emotions arising from a suggestion received at the age of two and a half years, and would begin to inquire eagerly concerning the nature of my cor-respondent's dreams and antipa-thies.

Oh, if I were an astrologer, I would say, "Your birthday is in March, is it not? Ah, I thought so!
You are one of those unfortunate beings who come under the spell
of the sign Pisces."
Likewise, if I were a physical structuralist, I would ask for her waist measure, the theory being that the narrow-backed people have an excess of energy and imitatives, while the broad-backed are generally content to let others bear the burdens and allow the world to slide along as it jolly well pleases.

However, these or half a dozen other explanations that I might offer don't appear to extend any particular help to my afflicted correspondent, who according to her letter is very genuinely disturbed
over the matter.

Girl Starts Complaint

"No matter where I go, or where I work," she says, "the girls never hesitate to ask me to do anything for them. Often I am inconvenienced by this and wish I had spunk enough to refuse, but it seems so simply can't. They don't think for a moment I would refuse, you see;
and if I ever do, why, I just fret
about it all day.

Even my friends have now begun to think that I have no backbone.
Personally, I seldom have occasion to ask favors of any one, and I don't understand why some people should be constantly imposing on another's good nature.

"Please don't think me silly, Mrs. Woodrow, but I am really in earnest about this."

The world, I have discovered, is largely made up of two classes of people—those whose motto is, "Let George do it," and the "Georgies."
You are evidently in the latter category, Georgian in every fibre.
My observation has also been their natural bent, whether that is to sing, to worry, to be lazy, or to lament. They may protest that this is not so, but no one is really foolish; actions speak louder than words.

And the same thing is true of the
"Georgies." They are really happy when being imposed upon. Believe me, with yourself and admit that the practice of assisting and helping others is the greatest pleasure in your life. Why, you yourself confess it, when you say that if you are ever compelled to refuse a request you fret about it all day.

Suffers from Comment

So who, then, object to the rule
for which fate has cast you? I think the real secret of your per-turbation over the matter is to be found in that sentence, "Even my friends have begun to think I
have no backbone."

Let your friends call it lack of
backbone and an imposition on
good nature. If you care to. You
don't have to accept that definition
or let yourself be troubled by it.
If it gives you pleasure to be
of aid and comfort to others, if
thereby you best express your real
nature, go ahead and do it heed-
less of the criticism or the protests
of your well-meaning friends.
Doubtless it often proves a severe
test on your line, doubtless your
reward is often ingratitudes or even rebuffs. But you can't have anything in this world without pay-
ing some sort of a price for it,
and your own satisfaction in doing
good will far outweigh the pin
pricks.

HAPSBURG'S TREASURES OF ART TO BE SOLD

The art treasures of Haps-burgs are to be sold to feed the hunger for art of Austria.
Negotiations are now under way for the sale of the vast collection in the Imperial Museum at Vienna and other storerooms of national art. Seventeen hundred old masters, priceless pictures and tapestries, gold and silver plate are going under the hammer. In the past.

Money Is Shaky.
Pound Sterling Limp.
Russian Gold.
Why Extra Suicides?

By Arthur Brisbane

David F. Houston is to move from the Agricultural Department to the Treasury of the United States. If he works as hard and intelligently on the nation's finance, as he worked for the farmers last the food supply of the country, he will be a first-class treasurer.

Money values of the world are crumbling. People are learning that "money" of itself is nothing.
You can buy German marks for about a cent apiece, less than a twentieth of their nominal value.
Austrian money is worse, and that of many countries about as bad.
The French franc has lost 60 per cent. of its value, Italian lire have lost 56 per cent.

Even the British pound sterling, financial rock of Gibraltar, and a first mortgage on Gibraltar, is a poor cripple, limping along at 22.45 pound. That loss of 27 per cent.
in value doesn't represent the real loss. For gold in London costs 117 shillings per ounce, whereas it used to cost only 85 shillings.
For the first time in a hundred years gold is at a premium in England. The pound is worth about $2. "He bath put down the mighty."

Just what this means the world doesn't know yet, but it will find out.

Paper money is only a nation's promise to pay. When people think a nation isn't able to pay, the value of its money drops like the "I. O.
U." of an insolvent individual.

No wonder the franc loses 60 per cent. of its value. France must pay, every year, twenty millions of francs, four thousand million dollars, to make up for the war loss. France has one-third the population of this country, less than one-third the wealth. If the United States had to pay twelve billion every year, a thousand million dollars every month, and you ask, what effect would it have on our credit?

The nations of the world went on a terrific debauch for two years.
Now they must pay for it.

Russia with her "wild dreamers"
seems to be financially in stronger position than any other nation.

Lenin has taken all the gold in Russia, accumulating it in government hands. "The endless millions of rubles printed by Bolshevism are worth nothing. But that some Bolshevism has under lock and key a gigantic store of gold with which it can do real business."

Reading that news from Russia
you read also that the United States has shipped eighty millions of dollars to France, and you wonder if this country can't wake up, realize that Christmas has passed and stop playing Santa Claus.

Italian lire may be down, but the Italian people and Italian courage are up. They are going ahead over these industries with extraordinary courage for a nation that only a few months ago was chopping down its forest for lack of coal.

Caproni has built a flying machine to carry one hundred passengers for sight seeing on the Italian lakes. The flying machine age is really here.

As though there had not been enough violent deaths in the war,
of war suicide has increased extraordinarily in all countries since the war ended.

More than five thousand killed themselves in this country last year. While war was raging, the number of suicides diminished everywhere. That was because the war was interesting. People wanted to see what would happen.

A scientific gentleman thinks we have all lived before, but is puzzled that we do not remember other lives.

The week-old baby was alive yesterday and the day before, but doesn't know that, doesn't remember. He doesn't even know that he is part of himself, bliss it is to be. Why, then, do we remember what happened yesterday?

Human beings are in their intellectual infancy, death is like a nightmare to them. True, they remember everything that happened before it.

We shall later carry consciousness through from one life to another, perhaps, newspapers
will carry the headlines,
"Cruel born again."
